Forest Fires Spread In Fraser Valley

Homes At Agassiz Destroyed and Others Menaced By Flames

High Wind and Summer-like Temperatures Create Serious Hazard in Chilliwack and Sumas Prairie District; One Side of Chilliwack Mountain Swept.

Canadian Press

Chilliwack, B.C., April 23.—Summer temperatures and a high east wind, which has blown for forty-eight hours, have created a serious fire hazard in the upper-end of the Fraser Valley.

Fire broke out yesterday on Promontory, a foothill section south of this city, and, fanned by the gale, burned over a large area of logged-off land, endangering the homes of some settlers.

A fierce fire also was burning today over the whole of the northeast side of Chilliwack Mountain, directly west of the city. It had destroyed a considerable amount of timber.

BUILDINGS SAVED

The home and barns of E. D. Barrow, Sumas Prairie, were endangered for several hours. A half dozen large cottonwood trees east of the buildings caught fire, as a result, it is believed, of a land clearing fire on a neighbor's property. The fire ran up the trees as though they were tinder, the sparks being carried long distances. A bucket brigade succeeded in saving the buildings.

KEEVE LOSES HOUSE

At Agassiz Reeve McKee lost his home by fire. The contents were saved, and the damage is covered by insurance. The fire is believed to have started from a spark from a chimney. The high wind carried sparks to an unoccupied house owned by Mrs. W. Moore. It was destroyed. Sparks set fire also to the residence of F. Sweetman. It was saved by hard work, but the chickenhouse was destroyed.

Fire burned over an area of four square miles from Waleach west toward Agassiz, for a time endangering the Indian church and school.

BACK-TO-LAND MOVE DEBATED IN COMMONS

Liberal Member Advances Scheme to Relieve Unemployment in Cities

Hon. R. J. Manion Says Railways Cannot Afford to Help By Giving Reduced Rates

Ottawa, April 23.—When the Commons members reassembled this afternoon there were still hundreds of questions on the order paper to be answered. Of the great list which faced the government as a result of the accumulation during the lengthy debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne many were answered at yesterday afternoon's sitting, but a formidable group remained and for some time the members will be hearing statements from the several departments.

POSITION OF RAILWAYS

There would be a very difficult time for Canadian railways to be asked to give special concessions, Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals, told the House yesterday afternoon. Passenger receipts of the Canadian National, and he believed, of the Canadian Pacific, had been falling steadily for five years. While he did not give the exact figures to the House, he said he had been "staggered" when they were shown to him. Competition from automobiles and buses were two contributing factors in the decline in passenger revenues.

The minister was sharing in discussion of a resolution introduced by Oscar L. Boulanger, Liberal, Bellechasse, Que., which called on the Canadian railways to establish reduced fares for a "back-to-the-land movement" so that residents of cities and towns wishing to take up farming would be provided with lowered fares.

ZEEBRUGGE DAY IS OBSERVED

Canadian Press

London, April 23.—To-day was a day of great anniversaries—the anniversary of Shakespeare's birth and of the Zeebrugge day.

The anniversary of the attack on Zeebrugge was observed by the presence of Admiral Sir Reginald Tyrwhitt, commander at the mole, to attend the special commemorative service at Dover, where the graves of the victims are. The mayor struck eight bells on the Zeebrugge bell presented to Dover by the King of the Belgians.

TWO WOMEN MISSIONARIES IN CHINA RELEASED

Hankow, China, April 23.—Lutheran mission headquarters received advices from Kinchow stating Miss Esther Nordlund, United States worker, and Miss Agneta Nelson, Swedish missionary, were released to-day by bandits, who had kidnapped them April 17.

The dispatch gave no details and did not mention Rev. Oscar Anderson, Swedish missionary, kidnapped at the same time.

The releases, which came unexpectedly, are thought to have resulted from military pressure against the brigands.

The captors had demanded $100,000 Mexican (about $12,000 gold) ransom.

STORM BREWS AS JULY HEAT STRIKES CITY

More April Sunshine Than Victoria Has Enjoyed For Years

Rainy Weather in California May Spread Here in Few Days

Summer, with bright sunshine and a rising thermometer has reached Victoria. Yesterday and to-day were the warmest days this city has had in April in many years. Amateur gardeners and the garden hose made its first appearance of the season in many cases.

A check-up at the Meteorological Observatory on Gonzales Hill shows this weather will probably not last long, as a severe storm is now sweeping over California and will probably reach Victoria in a few days, bringing with it some rain, which at this time will do the gardens a great deal of good.

SEVENTY-TWO DEGREES

To-day was warmer than yesterday and at noon the thermometer on Gonzales Hill registered sixty-eight degrees, compared to sixty-six degrees yesterday. But that was up on the top of the hill where the cool breezes sweep in from the sea. Down on one of the principal streets in town thermometers stood at seventy-two degrees. To-day was not so dry as yesterday, and the humidity was thirty-four degrees compared to twenty-six degrees yesterday.

F. Napier Denison, superintendent of Gonzales, reports more sunshine during the last six days than April has provided in recent years. During these six days there has been an average of thirteen hours of sunshine a day, which is equal to a regular day in July or August. To-day, though, the mode from some rain is expected.

Mr. Denison reports, with northwesterly winds prevailing. A warm wind from this direction is blowing over Victoria this morning. There is heavy rain in the Sacramento Valley in California, which is doing a great deal of good to the crops there. There will probably be a change of weather in Victoria within the next thirty-six hours, Mr. Denison said to-day.

Money Vote Soon For Montreal Harbor

Ottawa, April 23.—The financial position of the Montreal Harbor Commission is such that a government must give serious consideration to plans which involve further expenditures, the Commons was informed by a dispatch from Premier R. B. Bennett.

Other evidence was given that Watanabe carried $2,500 life insurance in favor of Sakurada.

HITOMI IS ILL

After court adjourned at 12:30 p.m., officials expressed fear Hitomi might not survive long enough to stand trial. Stretched weakly in an armchair, his feet on another chair, a hand-made cigarette behind his ear, Tadao Hitomi, listened to City prosecutor W. M. McKay read to the packed courtroom the blood-curdling story of the murder of Watanabe on the Vancouver waterfront. What McKay read was Hitomi's own statement, given voluntarily to police on April 3 and was being used as evidence at the preliminary hearing.

SOVIET LUMBER TEST IN THE U.S.

Cargo Reaches Providence, R.I.; Embargo Against Soviet Labor Products

Providence, R.I., April 23.—The Finnish tramp steamer Anvers arrived here to-day, seven weeks out of Leningrad, Russia, with a cargo of lumber from Soviet Russia, consigned to a local dealer, and a knotty problem for Treasury Department officials. Two hours after officials had boarded the battered tramp they would not advance an opinion as to the status of the cargo.

The Treasury Department decreed an embargo against such imports February 10, unless shippers should prove the imports were not produced by convict labor.

BURDEN OF PROOF

Unless the importer or exporter shows the lumber was produced by free labor, it can be seized and sent to this country. The burden of proof in such cases rests on the importer and exporter. It allowed entry the usual duty of $1 a 1,000 board feet will be collected on the Anvers' 3,200,000-foot cargo.

The cargo is of spruce, except for a small shipment of telegraph poles. The lumber was described as of high quality.

Postmasters Make Recommendations

Winnipeg, April 23.—Two suggestions to speed up mail service were contained in resolutions passed by the Manitoba Postmasters' Association, in its annual convention here yesterday.
The first requests that the size of "open letter" envelopes be restricted to five inches in length, it being claimed that in many instances letters have been lost or delayed through use of large envelopes. The second seeks to eliminate use by large firms of the well known and popular stamped return envelopes. These were sent out by companies to rural districts and returned from there without the local postmaster being accredited the revenue, it was said.
P. H. Nelson, Russell, Man., was elected president.

COAL OUTPUT FELL IN MARCH

Decline in Fuel Production Continued; Island Mines Loss Small

Coal production in British Columbia during March continued the decline which has featured monthly returns for the last two years. The production for the province totalled 143,830 tons, compared with 147,419 tons in March, 1930.

The mines of Vancouver Island showed the smallest decline recorded for many months, the production of 72,036 tons being only 906 tons below March last year.

Island coalfields give the following figures for the month: Comox 19,083 tons, Extension 6,332, South Wellington No. 5, 9,976, Western Fuel No. 1, 22,529, Grand Consolidated 12,815, Langville 643, Fiddick 164, Little Ash 336, Biggs 158.

BENNETT SAYS HERRIDGE WAS HIS ASSISTANT

Ottawa, April 23.—Major W. D. Herridge, E.C., recently appointed Canadian Minister to the United States, is the same gentleman described in the Imperial Conference report as the "personal assistant" of the Prime Minister. Major Herridge served without salary. This statement was made in the Commons yesterday by Premier R. B. Bennett in an answer to Lucien Dubois, Liberal, Nicolet, Que. To a further question, "Is the office of 'personal assistant' to the Prime Minister a permanent position, and will Mr. Herridge be replaced?" Mr. Bennett answered in the negative.

BENNETT SPEAKS AT YPRES DINNER

Deals Optimistically With Canada's Future at War Veterans' Anniversary

Ottawa, April 23.—Paying a tribute to the valor and determination displayed by Canadians in the Great War, Premier R. B. Bennett here yesterday struck a high optimistic note for the future of Canada. The Prime Minister spoke at the Red Chevron dinner on the sixteenth anniversary of the Second Battle of Ypres.

"I assure you," the Premier said, "how greatly I appreciate the contribution you are making, in addition to what you have already done, to the national life of this country. The valor, courage and determination, those high qualities displayed during the Great War are needed as much to-day and will make this Canada of ours a finer country in which to live and die."

Freely, the Prime Minister recalled his visit to the Ypres Salient last fall. "We need your help as we needed it in the Second Battle of Ypres," Mr. Bennett said.

LOVE OF CANADA
He had come back after his visit with a higher regard for Canada than ever before.

"I come here to-night," he declared in proposing a toast to the "First Fifty Thousand," "to pay tribute to that first thirty thousand who faced what they faced, endured what they endured, and conquered what they conquered."

Through Maj.-Gen. J. H. MacBrien, Mr. Bennett was made an honorary member of the Red Chevron, an honor he now shares with Sir Robert Borden. Sir Robert Borden, Canada's wartime Premier, associated his remarks with those of Mr. Bennett. "We are passing through the crisis better than any country in the world," he said. "This is only a temporary halt in our march of progress. The future of Canada is assured."

HOUSE TO CONSIDER 'PUBLICITY QUESTION' FOR SOME DOCUMENTS

Ottawa, April 23.—How far the government should go in producing documents that might prove injurious to the public good will be a question Parliament will decide later in the session. Premier R. B. Bennett made a statement on the question in the Commons yesterday afternoon.

It was a standing rule in the British House that no document, the publication of which might have an injurious effect on the public good, should be produced, he said. There was no corresponding rule in Canada and he believed Parliament should consider the question sometime later in the session.

The Good It Does

Far in the interior of British Columbia there lives a family, and to the mother of that family we feel deeply grateful for the letter she has been kind enough to send us. Three children in this family, the mother writes, were not doing very well. Their health was feeble, vitality low. The mother began giving them Pacific Milk. To-day they are strong and big and the family attribute the change to the milk.

Four on Island Starved to Death

Marseilles, France, April 23.—Hardships of Robinson Crusoe are recalled by a tragedy on a remote volcanic island which was revealed when the steamer Chambord brought a young Breton, Louis Heledan, to his home here.

Of the seven persons who were stranded for months on the island of St. Paul in the Indian Ocean, where they had gone to watch over a lobster canning enterprise, four died after great sufferings. Three, including a woman whose husband died, were rescued on the verge of death from starvation.

She—When we are married I'll share all your troubles and sorrows. He—But I have none. She—I said when we are married.

San Mateo, Cal., April 23.—Discovery of the body of a man hanging from a tree in a cemetery here under circumstances similar to those surrounding the death of Louise Teuber, seventeen-year-old San Diego girl, led authorities to start an investigation to determine whether there was any connection between the two cases.

Authorities said the body was that of John Procellano, about forty-six years old, of San Diego and Los Angeles. Scratches on the face and hands aroused the curiosity of officers, who recalled bits of flesh had been found under the finger nails of the Teuber girl.

Officers stated Procellano had been interested in spiritualism. The body was found Tuesday evening, but no special significance was attached to the case at that time, except that the noose by which it was hanging from the tree had been tied with a series of half hitches similar to those in the rope which supported the body of the Teuber girl.

THEY HAVE OUR EXAMPLE

IN AN ADDRESS AT THE ANNUAL banquet of the Prudential Insurance Company of America the other day, Hon. Hanford MacNider, United States Minister to Canada, said the responsibility for righting the wrongs of the world rested with the people of the United States and Canada.

Mr. MacNider, of course, does not expect to be taken too literally. We think, however, we know what he means. But even if these two countries were to announce that they were prepared to show the rest of the nations of the world the error of their ways in any form that would not be calculated to offend their susceptibilities, would the other nations listen with any show of patience, much less take a hint?

After all, there is a 5,000-mile object lesson on this continent which in itself is eloquent proof that if two or more peoples really want to live alongside one another in peace, instead of glaring at one another from fortresses, there is no reason why they can not do so.

But other nations have got so set in their ways that it takes a great deal to move them along safer lines. They are learning, however, and in the end the example which Canada and the United States are setting them may appeal more forcibly to them than at present.

IN THE SAME BOAT

SPEAKING BEFORE THE BOARD OF Trade in Vancouver, Hon. R. H. Pooley, Attorney-General in the Tolmie government, condemned the practice of rushing important legislation during the last two or three days of the session. He considered it unfair to the Legislature, the Attorney-General himself, and the public of the province.

Few will disagree with Mr. Pooley. A great deal of the time of every session of the Legislature is taken up by the discussion of amending bills, many of which would be unnecessary if adequate thought had previously been given to the original statute. Changing conditions, of course, demand alterations to the laws. But these cases are largely in the minority.

Is not Mr. Pooley partly responsible for the delay in the introduction of legislation? We presume he would consider the Taxation Act and the special Income Tax Act important matters. Both measures were brought into the Legislature by the Minister of Finance in the dying days of the session. Perhaps he found it far from an easy job to persuade Mr. Jones to hurry his bad news into the House.

But surely Mr. Pooley has not forgotten that it was he who, less than forty-eight hours before prorogation last year, presented a bill to the Legislature which changed the government's liquor policy very considerably—one change providing for a three-man commission, later to be appointed at a combined salary of $30,000, $18,000 more per annum than the province paid for the one-man commission the amending bill abolished!

In the dying hours of the recent session, moreover, Mr. Pooley introduced more amendments to the government Liquor Act, one of them giving the government authority to establish its own beer-brewing plant if a condition arose which might make it desirable to adopt such a policy.

In the days of opposition we recall that Mr. Pooley deprecated the practice of rushing through legislation during the last few days of the session. As Attorney-General now, we can readily believe that he is sincere in the views he expressed before the Board of Trade. But if he is not able to prod his colleagues into more speedy action with their special measures, however, he should at least find it comparatively simple to avoid any rush with measures for which he is directly responsible.

It is a good omen for the future, this obvious repentance from the Attorney-General. The Times hopes his colleagues will help him to do better next year. The session of 1932 might be his last as Attorney-General, and he will naturally desire to make as good a showing as possible.

STILL UNDER CONSIDERATION

MR. MACKENZIE KING MADE IT clear to the Prime Minister some time ago that the opposition had not attempted, and did not intend to attempt, to embarrass the government in dealing with the problem of unemployment; and he promised to continue co-operation. With this understanding, The Toronto Globe considers, the public is justified in wondering why an announcement of Mr. Bennett's policy has been delayed or why means for meeting the situation are still under consideration. We are reminded that on the eve of the general election last year the Conservative leader said: "Mr. King promises consideration of the problem of unemployment. I promise to end unemployment. Which plan do you like better?" To which The Globe adds:

This was some nine months ago. Since then a special session of Parliament has been held to deal with the question. Voters, no doubt, assumed that Mr. Bennett meant what he said in the pre-election promise, and that he knew what he was talking about—if not regarding Mr. King's position, at least regarding his own intentions. Also, of course, it was assumed that the special session had something to do with the implementing of a policy involving unemployment. At this date, however, we find the Prime Minister telling a deputation that the question is under consideration, and telling Parliament that a policy is still to be decided.

Admittedly, the government's job is not a simple one. The governments of many countries are finding this out as they face similar but more serious problems. Still, Mr. Bennett gave the people of Canada an unequivocal promise to end unemployment. They naturally thought he had a scheme about which nobody knew anything, and they gave him the chance to produce it. He is still considering it—nine months afterward.

EARL BEAUCHAMP ON AUSTRALIA

EARL BEAUCHAMP, LEADER OF the British Liberal party in the House of Lords, passed through Victoria a month or so ago on his return to Great Britain from a visit to Australia after an absence of thirty years. On that occasion he gave this newspaper an interesting account of the changes which had taken place in the southern Dominion since he retired from the position of Governor and Commander-in-Chief of New South Wales in 1901. To these impressions he has added others in an article in The British Trade Review, in which he deals with the present economic troubles that are worrying Australia.

Earl Beauchamp begins by saying that he has nearly always found the less people know of a subject the reader they are with their criticism, particularly when they feel that there is no need for that criticism to contain anything of a constructive nature. That, perhaps, explains the inclination of those who know least of Australia to speak of its present economic crisis as if it were some purely self-sought trouble unrelated to the difficult conditions which now obtain all over the civilized world.

"Actually there are few countries whose welfare is more dependent upon the general prosperity of the rest of civilization," we read further. "Australia serves the world chiefly as a producer of primary products, of which wool and wheat form the bulk, the prices of both these commodities having fallen substantially below the level obtaining in 1913. Something like a third of her whole production is exported, and it is upon the prices obtained for these exports that her prosperity is mainly dependent."

One of the tragedies of the present world-wide trade depression is that, while the earth has yielded a great abundance of such commodities, Earl Beauchamp proceeds, its population has lacked the means rather than the will to consume them, for, so long as there remains any want in the world, it can not be truthfully said that there is any over-production of those necessities which serve to feed or clothe us.

That an increase in the production of such commodities as wheat and wool, which form some ninety per cent of Australia's exports, should occasion a reduction in their prices is perhaps natural, but that this reduction should fall below the point where production remains remunerative seems to Lord Beauchamp to be against the natural order of things, as low prices of primary products should correct themselves through the consequent increase in the consumption of goods manufactured from them. He thinks it is a correction which statesmen should encourage in every way.

THE BEAUTY OF FORGIVENESS

MORE WONDERFUL THAN THE BEGINNING of a beautiful friendship is the mending of a broken one. To forget and to forgive is still the noblest concession man can make; it inspires in him his most heroic quality.

Quite casually the other day it was reported, and with not too much emphasis, that David Belasco, well known here, and Mrs. Leslie Carter, his renowned first "star," had become friends again after a feud which separated them for more than twenty-five years.

It was a bitter feud, as every drama lover of the time will recall. Mrs. Carter, at the height of her dramatic fame after successes in "The Heart of Maryland," "Zaza" and "Dubarry," violated a Belasco precept by her secret marriage. The producer vowed never to speak to her again. Now, a quarter of a century later, Mrs. Carter confides from her Hollywood home that she is preparing once again to appear under Belasco's management. "We are good friends now," she declares.

However you regard this historic episode, you must admit it presents its moral. It is that no breach is so bitter that Time, the great healer, cannot mend again. The world would be a sweeter place in which to live if differences that keep people and nations at odds could be settled in the spirit with which Belasco and Mrs. Carter have ended their breach.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

THE ARGENTINE
The Dublin Weekly Irish Times

There is every reason to anticipate a return to an almost pre-war spaciousness in the Argentine's standard of living, and in such circumstances it behoves British exporters to ensure that for once they are not left behind in a race which is increasingly to the swift. Britain, owing largely to her extensive purchases of chilled meat, is the Argentine's best customer—a fact which that country realizes. In this case, therefore, Britain will have no excuse of she does not get her share of the coming orders. We refuse to believe that British manufacturers will throw away the chance.

HOW WILL OUR AGE BE KNOWN?
The Minneapolis Journal

How will the present age be known to posterity? There is reason for suspecting that it will not be recorded as the age of the radio primarily, nor as the age of the automobile, nor as the period of the second industrial revolution. The belief is warranted that our age will be known as the period of reconstruction after the greatest war in history. Boast as we may about achievements, the World War set the problems of the present period and placed its stigma upon our time. It marked the close of one epoch and the beginning of another. Our lives are set against a background of large scale construction.

ARNOLD BENNETT
The Winnipeg Free Press

That portion of the work of Arnold Bennett which is likely to last is about the smoky, dismal Midland industrial centres of England he called The Five Towns. In their murky squalor he erected statues of romance. He set down their unlovely scenes with unflinching pains till they existed in vivid reality. The commonplace quivered, and in no book of all those he wrote did it survive its author as a classic effort. Bennett remained the journalist in literature, and as such troubled the purists without dismaying himself. He dealt in facts, not in ideas, and if he piled up details that led to effluence, he was unconcerned with causes. His devotion to detail approached the definition of genius, and lent justification to the report that he worked harder than the lowliest driven clerk in the city. His industry was prodigious; but his enthusiasm in the practice of what he described as The Author's Craft, was unquenchable. He reaped material rewards that are said to have made him one of the wealthy men of England.

By H. B. W.

WELL, SPRING, notoriously bad-tempered in this part of the world and as tickle as any woman, has started to smile on us at last. That is to say, she has started to smile as this is written, but no one knows what she will be doing by the time it is printed. Before she changes her mind, therefore, I think something should be said about spring, the first real spring weather of the year. There is no saying anything about spring, of course, for everything worth while has been said about her by able persons centuries ago. And yet you cannot tell it pass, for when spring arrives we never mean can think of anything else at all, and no chronicler of events can imagine anything else worth recording.

THE ONLY new thing that can be said, and it is ready to be said, is that most of what has been said about spring in the past, most of what is being said now, is all boloney. Spring everywhere is represented as the most joyous time of the year, when young men's fancies lightly turn to thoughts of love and old men's graves a new spell of foolishness. This may be true long ago, but it is no longer true under our present ideal system of living. From ancient habit we do not admit it, but spring under our ideal system of living is the most mournful and the most trying season of all the year.

TRUTH, THERE may be a superficial glamor about it, a great rushing to have lawn stores and office newsmen to milliners to buy new hats; but underneath, every successful man, who is a satisfactory product of our ideal manner of living, is more miserable now, since spring arrived, than he has been at any time since it arrived a year ago. It is only the unsuccessful man, the man who has no great place to fill in our system, who can regard spring as his friend, and who can be friends with spring. The successful man have no time for these things. They are too busy supporting our ideal system of living.

I HAVE BEEN about a good deal today. I have talked to three cabinet ministers, several high public officials, a number of newspaper folk, several store clerks, two office boys, and a farmer. That, I think, is a fair cross-section of our community, and from that cross-section I found nothing to contradict my theory about spring, but everything to support it. The three cabinet ministers, chained to their desks by the iron chains of politics, busy as they were, would not satisfy the most exacting taxpayer. One of them said he would willingly give his job for a month in the woods. Another wished dully that he could get out and sow some green peas. The third asked only to be able to sit on a lawn and forget the government. The high public officials were all finding that work in an office is agony when the sun is shining outside and the pigeons are nesting in the stone tail-coat pockets of Capt. Cook's statue. The newspaper folk looked out of their windows with a great yearning. The office boys were all for the beach. The farmer, Mr. George Pudgebury by name, with no great position to fill, and no great reward to earn—wasn't lamenting about spring. He was out in it, reveling in it.

SHORT-SIGHTED investigators like cabinet ministers, successful business men and the like, all recognize the great trials of this season, and secretly realize that they were a great deal happier in the middle of January, when a warm office seemed so pleasant. They realize these things and among themselves they all blame our ideal system of life which prevents men from getting out into the spring-time and breathing the soft, warm breath of it as they used to do before they were successful. Our ideal system is short-sighted. Our ideal system of life does not prevent anyone from doing these things, for which we yearn so earnestly. The fatal allegation against it is not on that score. The fatal allegation against it is that it has so undermined our fibre and quality that we don't yearn for them hard enough. We don't yearn for them hard enough to go out and get them.

MOST of the successful men who are yearning to-day for the opportunity to get out into the spring, to live in the country, to sleep in the woods by some babbling stream, to cut their own wood and milk their own cows—most of them could easily do these things if they really wanted to. Why, then, do they imagine? Why, when I could spot writing, foolish things about spring and enjoy spring itself out there with Mr. Pudgebury behind his plough, if I wanted to hard enough. The successful men could all turn gypsies if they wanted to take the winter of the gypsy life with the spring, and I could be a playman this time of the year if I wanted to milk cows in the darkness of December mornings. We don't want to. We want to be two-fisted, men in April and kid-gloved gentlemen with the first autumn frosts.

PERHAPS IT is the realization of these things in a dim, dumb way that makes April so particularly distressing. We are miserable not so much because we can't rush away from our ideal scheme of life and become glorious savages; but rather because we know that we have lost the ability and the compelling desire to do so and, in our hearts, we are ashamed.

SO NEARLY perfect is our scheme of living, however, that our shame will not last long. We shall yearn for better days for a little while. We shall rush out with lawns rolled up and hands carefully protected with gloves to dig a few square feet in the garden. The more enthusiastic of us may even reach the point of sowing a row of green peas and possibly plucking a few weeds. And many will take recklessly to the woods, like their fathers, only they will use plush-cushioned sedans. But by the first of June this fever will have passed. The essential sanity of our system will have returned. The weeds will grow in the few square feet of garden, or some gardener will have been hired to pull them out. The green peas will have withered in their pods for lack of watering. The bold adventurers will have returned from the wilderness and their plush-cushioned sedans will be parked at the golf course. The present yearning for basic things will have been forgotten, better feelings will have asserted themselves, and every sensible man will realize that our system of living is nearly perfect after all. This is very comforting, is it not?

Twenty-five Years Ago To-day

THE VICTORIA DAILY TIMES

APRIL 23, 1906

(From the Times Files)

The Indianapolis from Seattle last evening brought the first of the refugees from the destroyed city of San Francisco. There had come to Seattle several of them who remained only a few hours in the city, leaving later in the evening for the mainland on their way to their homes.

Weather forecast—Victoria and vicinity: Moderate to fresh westerly with southerly winds, partly cloudy with showers chiefly at night.

The Victoria Theatre was well filled on Saturday evening when Blanche Walsh paid her annual visit to the city and appeared in Clyde Fitch's play, "The Woman in the Moon."

The seventh annual spring meeting of the Pacific Northwest Golf Association will last five days, commencing May 2, at the Victoria Golf and Country Club. This organization comprises practically all the associations of importance on the Pacific Coast.

The association football game played in Vancouver over the week-end between the team of this country and the Celtic of Vancouver resulted in a scoreless draw, thus leaving the Garrison team of this city champions for another year.

The Maple Leaf Lacrosse Club of Vancouver was granted a franchise in the British Columbia Amateur Lacrosse Association at its annual general meeting of that association held on Saturday evening in Vancouver.

TRACES LIFE OF DICKENS

Brief Sketch of Writer's Life
Given By C. C. Pemberton
Before Local Fellowship

With a sketch of the life of Charles Dickens, C. C. Pemberton, president of the Victoria Dickens Fellowship, furnished one of the features of the special entertainment given by his group at Amphion Hall yesterday evening.

He mentioned the visits of the well-known writer to North America, touching upon his trips in the United States and Canada, telling of the different fellowships which had been formed on this continent to preserve his memory. Character representations taken from Dickens' books were greatly enjoyed by the gathering. A sketch from "Nicholas Nickleby" by "Nicholas Nickleby," and a sketch of Nicholas Nickleby and Smike, from the same book, were given by the pupils of the Victoria Dickens Fellowship. Other selections included dances and musical numbers given by the pupils of the Victoria Dickens Fellowship. Mrs. Wilfrid Ord and Miss Shrapnel.

DANCING ENJOYED

An adagio dance by Miss Irene Holmes and Jack Taylor, and a cowboy tap dance by Miss Edith McDonald, Lillian Leila, Irene Williams, Phyllis Williams and Babe Campbell drew a well-earned share of applause from the audience. The participants were the pupils of the Victoria Dickens Fellowship. The following took part in the entertainment: Mrs. Clowes, Mrs. Franklin and Misses Kathleen Martin, Grace Platt, Dorothy Welham, Beverly Armstrong, Hilda Jacques, Jessie Middleton, Ruth Gardiner, Doris Fellows, Muriel Franklin, Doris Le Page, Gladys Shrapnel, Christine Schmalz, Scowcroft, and Messrs. A. W. Arnup, W. L. Lewis, Hugh Le Page, T. W. McNeill and Master Llewellyn. A. W. Arnup acted as master of ceremonies.

Canada Levies Income Tax On $781,000,000 Total

Canadian Press
Ottawa, April 23.—The total amount of persons' net income subject to tax in 1930 was $781,000,000. This information was given in the Commons yesterday by Hon. R. B. Rykman, Minister of National Revenue, in answer to questions by J. S. Woodsword, Labor member for Winnipeg North Centre.

Letters addressed to the editor and intended for publication must be short and neatly written. The longer an article the greater the chance of its being lost. The editor of the writer, but not for publication, unless the writer wishes. The publication or rejection of articles is a matter entirely in the discretion of the editor. The editor is not responsible for the return of the communications submitted to the editor.

FOOLISH PRACTICE

To the Editor:—Is no one going to voice a protest against the extreme folly of some local authority in allowing a driveway across the Gaietyway sidewalk? This, if allowed, will be a continual source of danger to both vehicles and pedestrians, automobiles going south increasing speed at the points and at times the path is blocked with people—it is in fact our only promenade.

Is this another case of a weak official allowing his judgment to be led astray by the lure of financial interests? Or is it a case of stupidity? It is one or the other.

726 Yates Street. A. GARDNER.

WHAT HAPPENED TO IT?

To the Editor:—Your report of the Liquor Control Board landed several carloads of eastern beer at Victoria and Vancouver. What has happened to this beer? Purchasers at the liquor vendors are told it is not for sale yet and that it has not yet come out of the local and Vancouver liquor warehouses.

Who has given the order that this outside beer, imported with a flourish of announcements by the liquor vendors, is to be held in reserve for the Legislature? Should not now be held here?

It would be interesting to know who is running this business in British Columbia—the government, our $80,000 Liquor Control Board or some other influence!

OLD ENGLISH BEVERAGE CONNOISSEUR.

INSULT TO MAYOR AND ALDERMEN

To the Editor:—Your report of the council meeting dealing with the appointment at the City Hall is a very fair report and with your kind permission may I reply?

There is only one "body" that is justified to request my retraction or excuse me of impertinence in dealing with the question at issue. The injustice done to the youth of our city; and I am pleased to say they have the means at their disposal, the press and the vote and may I very humbly submit to the assembly, His Honor the Mayor and the section of the honorable body of aldermen who disagree with my letter (I am sure this is very respectful) are at an times compelled to bow to this same body's public opinion.

I simply voiced the opinion of a large section of the public and very respectfully requested a committee to go into this matter so that if an injustice had been done, remedy it; if not restore the confidence of this section of the public. Surely, there was nothing wrong in this.

Pitarch once wrote an essay on the benefits which a man may receive from his enemies; and, among the good fruits of enmity, he counted this in particular, "that by the reproaches it casts upon us we see the worst side of our character and open our eyes to several blemishes and defects in our lives and conversations, which we should not have observed without the help of such ill-natured monitors."

I particularly address this to the young members of the council, the Mayor and Alderman Peden.

Pitarch lived many, many years ago. Your space is too valuable to encroach any further upon, because I shall have pleasure of making my reply to the honorable body the Victoria council at the next meeting.

"FACTS AND FEARS"

To the Editor:—Most of us have surely wondered at times just how much of this so-called "business depression" exists through lack of confidence, or fear for the future, and how much through adverse factors which seem, for the time being, beyond the power of man to adjust.

No one who realizes that for many years past the chief source of Canada's circulation of wealth has been the products of the farmer, can fall to place the depressed value of grain, etc., at the head of the list of adverse factors, in so far as our own country is concerned.

This is a problem which is bearing and is going to bear most heavily upon our economic system. On the other hand, when we take into consideration the vast industrial development which has taken place in this country, there surely must be room for some degree of hope for the future and optimism in the present. We are continually deluged with reports of unemployment, bread lines, stock market crashes, etc., etc., and while these things exist and it would be impossible and futile to shut our eyes to them, still it seems to me that in some respects things are running along in the same old way, with a pay day every week or month as the case may be. It seems to me that these fortunate have a very definite duty to perform in times like the present. Most people will agree that lack of confidence or fear, or whatever we may call it, is to some extent directly responsible for stagnation in business and insufficient circulation of money.

Let the governments of the country, Dominion, provincial and municipal, the service clubs and other influential bodies put forth all their energy, combined of singly, with the one idea of restoring confidence in people's minds, not by so-called "hot air" or bluff, but by presenting the bright side of conditions as they are, adhering only to what is strictly the truth, by means of the press and on the platform, and watch the resultant if there is some industry operating at an increased capacity, or if we have opened up a new avenue of trade, let us have the details. Thousands of us are just as secure in our jobs or positions as we ever were, and yet these same people are apt to keep their funds out of circulation simply through fear engendered by reports of "hard times" being rammed down their throats at every turn. Is the suggestion contained in this letter worthy of the consideration of any influential body of men or women? A. L.

this delightful Tooth Paste
saves you $3 a year

WHY don't you save $3 a year or more by using Listerine Tooth Paste at 25¢ instead of high-priced dentifrices that accomplish no better results?

Listerine Tooth Paste is used by more than three million people. To a great many of them, price is no object. Results are their sole basis of judgment. And the results of Listerine Tooth Paste are so quickly apparent, once you try it, that you will wonder why you didn't use it long ago.

This dentifrice is made by the makers of Listerine, the safe antiseptic. This alone guarantees its quality. That it can be sold at 25¢ is due to sharp economies effected by mass production and modern methods of manufacture.

If you have not already used Listerine Tooth Paste, get a tube today. Give it a thorough trial. Compare it with any tooth paste you have ever used regardless of price, and judge by results alone. They will win you to this new dentifrice as they won three million people before you. We ask you to note how little brushing is necessary to impart to your teeth a charming, flashing brilliance. Note, too, how swiftly but how gently this tooth paste removes the stains, discolorations, and stubborn tartar. After you have used it six months or a year, look at your teeth and see how free they are from cracks and fissures. That is because the cleansing and polishing agents in Listerine Tooth Paste are among the gentlest known. They are harder than tartar and hence remove it. But they are softer than enamel and consequently are harmless to it.

Look, too, for that delightful feeling of freshness and exhilaration that follows its use—the sensation you associate with Listerine itself.

And last but not least, reflect that these benefits are yours for about half of what you would ordinarily pay. Lambert Pharmaceutical Co., Toronto, Canada.

CAREFUL WORK IS BASIS OF LAWN SUCCESS

Ontario Expert Describes Construction Methods, Seed and Fertilizer Required

Whatever plantings one may do about the home the effect will not be satisfactory unless a good lawn is provided. A spotted front yard with small flower beds and individual shrubs, even though placed with some notion of uniformity, is no longer a popular method of treating the ground that fronts the residence.

When addressing the Ontario Horticultural Association convention a few weeks ago Rev. Dr. Scott of Perth recommended for the front yard of the home the open centre, shrubs and perennial plants in groups, the avoidance of straight lines and provision for careful handling of the plants. Dr. Scott emphasized the importance of a clear open centre, covered, except for necessary walks, with luxuriant, but well-kept grass.

Treating the subject of the open lawn in his book, "Beautifying the Home Grounds of Canada," M. H. Howitt makes the observation that a practically unbroken stretch of land, whether large or small, is the setting or ground work for the placing of all the trees, shrubs and perennial plantings. Even in the farm garden, Mr. Howitt stated, panels of grass are used most effectively in some of the best work. Nor is the dead level at all necessary for a fine lawn. The flowing undulations of the average natural slope or level may well be retained, and only the most pronounced changes in level altered. Bumpiness should be avoided for the sake of upkeep, and a happy medium between levelness and nature arrived at. As the lawn is a more or less permanent factor much depends on a proper planning.

Soil excavated from the basement is generally poor and unsuitable for good grass. It may be advisable to remove four or five inches of it and bring in a good class of soil which should be enriched with well rotted yard manure, or if this is not available, a general fertilizer, such as seedsmen usually recommend.

CARE IN GRADING

J. B. Spencer, B.S.A., director of the Ontario Horticultural Association, states that a good chemical fertilizer mixture may be made up of nitrate of soda one-half pound, sulphate of potash one-half pound, and superphosphate and ground bone, one pound each. This quantity will mix in sufficient for 100 square feet of surface. In doing the grading care should be taken to see that there are no depressions left on the lawn that will hold water, and that the moisture will flow away from the foundation wall of the house. The soil should be well compacted and rolled and lightly raked in preparation for sowing the seed.

ROLL AFTER SEEDING

The usual lawn grass mixture sold by leading seed firms is generally satisfactory. Mr. Spencer states that a very good mixture may be made of Kentucky blue grass and white Dutch clover, at the rate of thirty-five pounds of the former to one of the latter. One ounce of the mixture is sufficient for three and one-half square yards of lawn. The seedling should be done as early as the soil is fit, and a more even spread of the seed will be secured if applied on a calm day. Slight raking and rolling following the seeding brings the soil and seed into intimate contact, insuring quick germination. By the time the grass is four or five inches high it will have sufficient root-hold to withstand the operation of a lawnmower. For the early cuttings the machine should be set rather high, and the blades should be very sharp and well set so as to avoid pulling out the plants. Some weeds are almost sure to appear the first summer. These should be carefully removed, and when the soil is disturbed in digging or pulling them out a little new seed should be scattered in the spots.

GASTRIC ULCERS TRACED TO WORRY AS DIRECT CAUSE

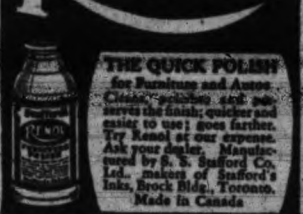

Dr. Harvey Cushing Establishes Origin After 17 Years of Research

Toronto, April 23.—Dr. Harvey Cushing, foremost authority in the world on surgery of the central nervous system, announced in Convention Hall the results of research work into the causes of gastric ulcer on which he has been engaged for the last seventeen years. In the opinion of Toronto medical authorities who attended the Donald C. Balfour Foundation lecture, the medium through which the announcement was made, Dr. Cushing has given the first coherent and completely tenable answer to the question "what causes gastric ulcer," a problem which has engaged and baffled research since 1894.

Briefly stated, Dr. Cushing's suggestion was that gastric ulcer results from disturbances in that section of the brain known as the diencephalon, which is the seat of the primitive emotions and governs the majority of the automatic actions of living.

Dr. Cushing, he stated, is one of the most common of present-day maladies and is apparently increasing. It undoubtedly has a relation to the high speed and tension of modern life. Usually it is found to occur in those who are overworked or under emotional stress and the influence of worry. Such emotions have their nervous control in the diencephalon. The same section of the brain also exercises a control over the digestive processes.

It was a seventeen-year-old desire to understand what caused the death of a patient of his whom he had operated on for a brain tumor that started Dr. Cushing's research. Three other patients of Dr. Cushing's have died since then under similar circumstances and it was almost unanimous research in an effort to solve the actual cause of their deaths which has resulted in the discovery. In each of these four cases of death, post mortems revealed that parts of the digestive tract were perforated or cracked as in gastric ulcer.

YOUR BABY and MINE

by MRS. METER ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies and children. A stamped and self-addressed envelope forwarded to this office will bring a personal reply.

SPARE THE BABY'S NERVOUS SYSTEM

Fear is one of the fundamental emotions of which even tiny babies are capable. Their fear is aroused by loud sounds and by an expectation of being dropped. Later on other fears may develop through association with these two.

If babies are universally terrified by loud sounds, they also have the faculty of becoming terrified of other quite harmless things which are presented to them at the moment when they are experiencing this fear. It was demonstrated that a repulsive reptile would arouse only interest in the baby until that same reptile was presented at the same moment in which a loud bang was sounded. If this were repeated often enough, the baby showed the same terror of the snake as he formerly exhibited toward the loud sound. We say then that the baby was "conditioned" to a fear of the snake.

NOISES AT HOME

Faylor's dog, which many of you have perhaps seen in educational movie exhibitions, is the classic example of "conditioning." The flow of saliva at the approach of food was considered an indication of pleasurable anticipation. But when a bell was rung repeatedly as the food was offered, very shortly the food could be omitted entirely and the saliva would flow freely at the sound of the bell.

Suppose we translate these experiments into something more nearly approaching our home experiences. There are sufficient noise-making instruments in any home to make it possible to frighten a baby a dozen times a day. Heavy objects fall. Roller shades snap up. And we have vacuum sweepers with their noisy suction, shrill bells, loud musical instruments. If

EASIER FOR BABY

If we are putting baby in his bed at the moment when a pile of dishes crashes to the floor, it is quite to be expected that each time baby is put to bed after that he may cry pitifully, remembering his fear experience at that moment. If baby is taken to the house of some stranger and an excited dog barks furiously at him, or the hubbub of excitement terrifies him, he may forever dislike strange homes and strange people, and certainly all dogs.

This should make the mother most careful in the way she introduces new foods, new faces, new habits, and strange objects to the baby. There should be a real effort to see that the initial experiences are pleasurable.

A mother knows that if she offers a strange food masked by a well-liked one, baby will eventually come to accept the new food alone. If strange persons approach baby while he is safe in his mother's arms and make no forcible efforts to take him away, the baby will become used to strange people and eventually they will not terrify him.

If the child has become terrified of some object or animal or some natural experience because it has become associated with terror, the mother can make a diligent effort to erase the bad impression by repeating the experience and attaching it more firmly to something pleasurable and interesting to the child. Conditioning works both ways.

To-morrow: "Regularity of Habits Important to Baby's Health."

Mrs. Galbraith from Vancou, India, Young Women's Baptist Seminary, thanking the ladies for their wonderful parcel sent to India.

Canadian Daughters' League—Preparations being held under way for the "telephone" bridge to be held in various homes in the city to-morrow evening under auspices of Assembly No. 6, Canadian Daughters' League. The committee of management are Mesdames G. H. Gardiner, A. Hurlburt, P. J. Jean and C. E. Stewart. Games, refreshments and socials will be held. All are asked to supply their own cards and cards paid. Play will commence promptly at 8.15 o'clock.

First Baptist Mission Circle—The regular meeting of the Women's Mission Circle of First Baptist Church was held in the church parlour Monday evening. There was a splendid attendance, with Mrs. Beveridge in the chair. Mrs. C. C. Spottford brought a splendid and interesting report from the Women's Mission Board of B.C. showing splendid work in women's activities. Mrs. Wm. Grant read an interesting paper on "Prohibition in B.C." while Mrs. Beach and Mrs. Haverstock gave a splendid dialogue relative to prohibition. Mrs. Galbraith reported for the White Cross committee, and urged the ladies to increase their activities. The meeting closed with prayer for the extension of prohibition throughout the province. An interesting letter was also read by Vancouver, April 23.—Women who saw overseas service with the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps, wearing campaign hats, and former students of Scottish and English ladies' colleges, turned out a large and enthusiastic crowd of honor at the Canadian Pacific Railway station here yesterday to welcome the twelve British headmistresses who are touring Canada inspecting universities and other seats of education in the Dominion.

The ex-service women who are entertaining Miss E. Stewart, C.B.E., during the party's stay here, greeted her with a beautiful corsage of spring flowers as she stepped from the train. As Inspector of the "Waacs," Miss Thompson came in contact with most of the Canadian women who saw service in France.

Edinburgh Ladies' College ex-pupils had the largest party of "old grads" on hand for the reception. Wearing their college colors on their coats they were quickly spotted by Miss M. Tweedie, headmistress of that institution, and were soon chatting volubly of old times.

Clad for the most part in tweeds and furs, the visitors were pleasantly surprised to find heavy clothing an excess baggage on the Pacific Coast at this time of year.

Enthusiastic about the warmth of the reception they have received across Canada since arriving at Halifax aboard the Canada Pacific liner Duchess of Bedford, on which they were fellow passengers of Lord Bessborough, Canada's new Governor-General, the headmistresses will enjoy a round of teas, luncheons and dinners in their honor, also inspecting elementary and high schools and the University of British Columbia before leaving for Victoria Friday night.

WAACS' GREET HEADMISTRESSES

Members and friends of the Victoria Musical Art Society were treated to a most interesting and delightful program at the Shrine Hall yesterday evening, the major part of the programme being under the direction of Stanley Bulley.

Over sixty performers took part in the programme in which music from the sixteenth century to the present day was featured, ranging from the classical to the modern, special interest being created by the inclusion of several of Mr. Bulley's own compositions.

The classical school was represented by Bach and Mozart, the orchestra under the baton of Mr. Bulley presenting the Bach "Suite in D" and Mozart's "A Little Night Music," each revealing excellent ensemble work and an understanding of the underlying spirit. Mr. Bulley's gift of leadership was also evident in the singing of the Madrigal Club which little group, it was estimated, originally meeting for pure love of madrigal singing, had expanded into its present form and was now attempting more ambitious work. Meticulous attention was paid to tempo, and careful training and serious study was evident in the rendering of Gibbons' "Silver Swan," Willby's "Sweet Honey-Sucking Bee," Morley's "April Honey-Mistress' Face," Edwards' "In Going to My Naked Bed," and the sacred motet, "Ave Verum Corpus," the audience showing its appreciation in unmistakable fashion.

Three difficult Bach numbers were chosen by the trio, including Mrs. Sidney Oliver, soprano; Miss Irene Rich, pianist; and Miss Eileen Dumbarton, pianist, both singers and instrumentalists showing musical understanding, coupled with clean technique, in their interpretations.

Miss Macquinn, a gifted young pianist, contributed a Debussy group, including "Girl With Flaxen Hair" and the sonorous "Submerged Cathedral," both played with intelligence and splendid tone. In response to a well-merited encore she gave the charming "Old Musical Box."

Llewellyn Jones and Mrs. Gladys Stark contributed vocal groups, Mr. Jones giving an excellent rendering of "Crossing," one of Mr. Bulley's own compositions, the composer sharing with the singer in the ovation which greeted this number. Vaughan Williams' fine song "Vagabond" was also sung in splendid style by Mr. Jones, and as an encore he responded with Williams' "Bright is the Ring of Words."

Mrs. Stark's beautiful contralto was heard to advantage in a group which included Rogers' "There Be None of Beauty's Daughters" and Bar's "The Madcap Girl." Mr. Bulley acted as accompanist for her and for Mr. Jones with sympathy and understanding.

Address on Gaelic Culture Scheduled For April 30 Here

"Gaelic Poets of the Eighteenth Century" will be the subject of an address by Rev. Brother Lawless, principal of St. Louis College, before the New Education Fellowship at Victoria College, on Thursday, April 30. The lecture, which is being anticipated with great pleasure by members of the fellowship, will commence at 8 o'clock. Known as a keen student of old Irish literature, the speaker will doubtless be able to throw a great deal of light on this subject.

MUSICAL ART SOCIETY STAGES FINE CONCERT

Old and New Composers in Splendid Programme Yesterday Evening

Madrigal Club, Orchestra and Other Artists Warmly Acclaimed

Members and friends of the Victoria Musical Art Society were treated to a most interesting and delightful program at the Shrine Hall yesterday evening, the major part of the programme being under the direction of Stanley Bulley.

Over sixty performers took part in the programme in which music from the sixteenth century to the present day was featured, ranging from the classical to the modern, special interest being created by the inclusion of several of Mr. Bulley's own compositions.

The classical school was represented by Bach and Mozart, the orchestra under the baton of Mr. Bulley presenting the Bach "Suite in D" and Mozart's "A Little Night Music," each revealing excellent ensemble work and an understanding of the underlying spirit. Mr. Bulley's gift of leadership was also evident in the singing of the Madrigal Club which little group, it was estimated, originally meeting for pure love of madrigal singing, had expanded into its present form and was now attempting more ambitious work. Meticulous attention was paid to tempo, and careful training and serious study was evident in the rendering of Gibbons' "Silver Swan," Willby's "Sweet Honey-Sucking Bee," Morley's "April Honey-Mistress' Face," Edwards' "In Going to My Naked Bed," and the sacred motet, "Ave Verum Corpus," the audience showing its appreciation in unmistakable fashion.

Three difficult Bach numbers were chosen by the trio, including Mrs. Sidney Oliver, soprano; Miss Irene Rich, pianist; and Miss Eileen Dumbarton, pianist, both singers and instrumentalists showing musical understanding, coupled with clean technique, in their interpretations.

Miss Macquinn, a gifted young pianist, contributed a Debussy group, including "Girl With Flaxen Hair" and the sonorous "Submerged Cathedral," both played with intelligence and splendid tone. In response to a well-merited encore she gave the charming "Old Musical Box."

Llewellyn Jones and Mrs. Gladys Stark contributed vocal groups, Mr. Jones giving an excellent rendering of "Crossing," one of Mr. Bulley's own compositions, the composer sharing with the singer in the ovation which greeted this number. Vaughan Williams' fine song "Vagabond" was also sung in splendid style by Mr. Jones, and as an encore he responded with Williams' "Bright is the Ring of Words."

Mrs. Stark's beautiful contralto was heard to advantage in a group which included Rogers' "There Be None of Beauty's Daughters" and Bar's "The Madcap Girl." Mr. Bulley acted as accompanist for her and for Mr. Jones with sympathy and understanding.

Edinburgh Ladies' College ex-pupils had the largest party of "old grads" on hand for the reception. Wearing their college colors on their coats they were quickly spotted by Miss M. Tweedie, headmistress of that institution, and were soon chatting volubly of old times.

Clad for the most part in tweeds and furs, the visitors were pleasantly surprised to find heavy clothing an excess baggage on the Pacific Coast at this time of year.

Enthusiastic about the warmth of the reception they have received across Canada since arriving at Halifax aboard the Canada Pacific liner Duchess of Bedford, on which they were fellow passengers of Lord Bessborough, Canada's new Governor-General, the headmistresses will enjoy a round of teas, luncheons and dinners in their honor, also inspecting elementary and high schools and the University of British Columbia before leaving for Victoria Friday night.

The ex-service women who are entertaining Miss E. Stewart, C.B.E., during the party's stay here, greeted her with a beautiful corsage of spring flowers as she stepped from the train. As Inspector of the "Waacs," Miss Thompson came in contact with most of the Canadian women who saw service in France.

about preparing for her own departure. The last time she left Spain was when her mother, Queen Isabella, was de-throned in the 70s.

Paris, April 23.—Isabelle de Bourbon, aunt of ex-King Alfonso of Spain, died in a hospital here this afternoon. She was eighty years old.

Infanta Isabella's sister, Infanta Eulalia, and Infanta Beatrice, sister of Queen Marie of Roumania, were at the bedside. Victoria was notified at her hotel in Fontainebleau and she arrived at the clinic a few hours later.

When ex-King Alfonso and his family fled from Spain the Infanta Isabella, eighty-year-old, Princess of the blood, who once before saw a Spanish throne fall, was left in her private palace to learn of the latest royal debacle through her servants.

Alfonso, it was said, refused to bid her farewell because she was ill and because of the suffering the news would bring her.

But the door in the streets outside her Quintano Avenue palace aroused the Infanta's curiosity. She demanded to know the cause of all the uproar.

Airtight Pitching Keeps Major Ball Leaders In Front

Hurlers of Cards Braves and Yanks Working Smoothly

Mound Staffs of Top Teams in National and American Leagues Are Setting Other Clubs Back on Their Heels; Leaders Allowing Few Runs to Opponents; All Three Won Games Yesterday; Hughes Critz Hits Home Run to Give Giants 5 to 4 Win Over Philadelphia.

There still is nothing that quite takes the place of old-fashioned, airtight pitching when it comes to winning ball games. And it takes no more than a cursory examination of the records up to now to discover why the St. Louis Cardinals and Boston Braves are setting the National League back on its heels, nor why the New York Yankees are doing likewise to the junior circuit.

In seven games the Cards' great mound staff has allowed only nineteen runs, considerably under three to the contest; and the Braves' surprisingly stout staff has given only twenty-eight scores in nine tilts. Yankees moundmen have held opponents to twenty-nine runs in eight games.

NAVY DEFEAT HUDSON'S BAY TO TAKE CUP

Capture Rennie and Taylor Soccer Trophy By 6 to 3 Win Over Departmentals.

Third Trophy to Be Won By Sailors This Year; McKay Shield Final Next Week

Continuing their scramble through all opposition in Wednesday League football, the Navy eleven captured the Rennie & Taylor Cup yesterday afternoon at the Royal Athletic Park by scoring a 6 to 3 victory over the Hudson's Bay. This is the third piece of silverware to be won by the Navy this season, the Hayward and Pender Cup already being in their possession. Next Wednesday the Navy will meet the Hays in the McKay Shield final and a victory will give the sailors a clean sweep.

In the match yesterday the Navy forced the issue from the opening kick-off, forcing the Hays into their own half. Shrimpton, in goal for the departmentals, turned down a shot from Badier and Cockrill. The Navy settled down with Fish and John Taylor testing Barker. Ten minutes after the start the Navy went into the lead on a goal by McDonald.

Still in the fight, the Hays tied the score, Woodley rushing in to boot home a rebound. This goal put added life in the Hays and they managed to take the lead after twenty-five minutes of play. Woodley notching his second goal with only a minute of the first half remaining. McDonald scored his second goal for the Navy, even matters at half-time.

The Navy held the whip hand in the second half and fifteen minutes after the resumption Badier beat Shrimpton with a high shot. The sailors added their fourth through R. Cockrill, and soon after McDonald made it 5 to 2 when his shot deflected off Davis into the Hays' net. The Navy's sixth and final goal came from the boot of R. Cockrill, while Don Fish netted the Hays' only goal in the second half.

Hewison refereed.

The teams follow:
Hudson's Bay—Shrimpton, Tupman, G. Davis, Oakman, Wright, Cull Taylor, Hewell, Fish, Woodley and Small.

Martha Jones Left Flat-footed Yesterday; Three Eligibles Run on Saturday

Lexington, Ky., April 23.—While patrons of eastern tracks have watched three prominent Kentucky Derby eligibles enter home in front, Kentuckians have witnessed candidates racing here in the Kentucky Derby, however, when the $3,000 Camden handicap is run.

Pat Caraway was invincible after the second inning and the Chicago White Sox opened before the home folks with a 10 to 2 win over Cleveland. Schmidt led a fourteen-hit assault on three Indians curvers with four hits and a sacrifice in five trips.

Sain kept the Chicago Cubs and Detroit apart, and wet grounds prevented the scheduled Tiger-Brown skrimish at Detroit.

Tothill scored very rapidly throughout the entire match and it was not long before he had passed the local player. Irish was only able to get the balls rolling for one good break when he chalked up an even eighty.

Following the match Tothill gave an interesting talk on English billiards and explained a number of interesting shots to the gallery along with demonstrations of how to play them.

Helene Madison Sets Up Canadian 100-Yard Record

Montreal, April 23.—Breaking the 100-yards freestyle Canadian record, Miss Helene Madison, of Seattle, concluded her exhibition swimming here yesterday evening. She lowered the mark to 1:02.75 and placed the new record in the book along with the 220 yards mark she set up on Tuesday night when she slashed the old record by 15.75 seconds. The old mark for the 100 yards was 1:17.

Miss Madison and her companions also smashed a relay mark yesterday evening, racing over the 100-yard medley event in 1:06.75, which is 8 under the United States record the same team set up at New York recently. In this event Miss Dawn Olson and Miss Lucy Schacht, also of Seattle, made up Madison's team.

All-star Soccer Elevens Draw In Vancouver Match

Vancouver, B.C., April 23.—giving a first class exhibition of soccer, the All-star teams from St. Andrews, Nanaimo and Royals-St. Savours made an even draw of two goals each before a crowd of 2,500 at Cos Jones Park, yesterday evening, and the result is a good indication of the risk of the game.

Brilliance of the two goal tenders, Sanford and Singleton, kept the score down, and it is marvellous why more counters were not tallied. The forwards of both teams were in on top of the goalies and took terrific drives, but the two main were a top form and turned down brilliant efforts aside.

Grads Speeding West For Canadian Finals

Eastern Hoop Champs Bringing Fourteen Players For Series With Varsity

Games Scheduled on April 27 and 29; Grads Unable to Bring Player By Airplane

Toronto, Ont., April 23.—St. Catharines Grads, eastern Canada senior basketball champions, are speeding westward to-day en route to Vancouver, where they meet University of British Columbia on April 27 and 29 in the Canadian championship series.

After being banquipped yesterday evening at St. Catharines the party, fourteen in all, including players, officials and a couple of supporters, was trained for this city, where they boarded the train for the coast. The team will be given a full day in Winnipeg for sight-seeing and for the purpose of breaking the arduous trip.

Efforts to have Hal Collins, clever utility player, transported by airplane, have failed. Collins, a student at the University of Toronto, cannot leave before Saturday as his examinations at the university do not conclude until Friday.

The obstacle in sending Collins by plane lies in the fact there is no service over the Rocky Mountains. The only way the player could be transported to the coast is by way of Chicago, San Francisco and thence up the coast to Vancouver. This was considered too long a trip, and the Grads are now hoping the games can be set back, otherwise Collins will not get into action in the first game.

MOUNTAIN OF USELESS METAL CLEARED AWAY

Vacant Lots Stripped of Untidy Car Fragments in Clean-up Campaign

Huge Collection of Indestructible Waste Sunk in Straits This Morning

A mountain of steel, occupying over 26,000 cubic feet of space, was this morning taken to sea by the city garbage department and dumped in deep water well towards Port Angeles. The material required a scow eighty feet long and thirty feet wide, the sixteen-foot-high pile being just one division of the collections made during the first three days of the "Clean-up and Paint-up" campaign being conducted this week by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The cargo of the scow included over 350 damaged hot water boilers, which had been collected by the city with the aid of two motorcyclists, stoves, ranges, bath tubs, bed springs and frames and a thousand types of useless metal articles collected from the residences of the city in nearly 400 special calls since Monday.

The bulk of the shipment consisted of ancient wreckage of automobiles, collected from vacant lots by lessors who await the city's annual spring clean-up campaign for economical removal of material not required by automobile junking firms.

LONG LINE OF TRUCKS
From early on Monday morning, when the campaign opened, a long array of trucks was lined down Store Street, awaiting the turn to discharge their burdens of indestructible waste. In addition to motor fragments and domestic wreckage the scow carried to sea paint drums, damaged commercial steel tanks, worn wheels, rubber tires, scrap metal and a multitude of other articles.

The city paid the hire of the scow, towage charges and the wages of the men required to unload the material at sea, the cost of loading the automobile and commercial waste being borne by those benefactors.

A second but much smaller load of indestructible metal is expected to be taken to sea at the week-end, when the clean-up campaign will close. While the clearing away of such bulky material has been of importance, it has been but a minor factor in the scope of the campaign to improve the city, being entirely outclassed in volume of material by the general rubbish collected. Each day the city garbage department has collected huge quantities of unwanted material from the homes of the city, the augmented collecting gangs being much behind their regular schedules of calls because of the added work imposed by the drive for a tidier city.

FREE WHEELING POPULAR WITH MANY MOTORISTS

Studebaker Sales Vastly Improved Since Feature Was Introduced Last July

The introduction of free wheeling with positive gear control by Studebaker last year convinced the automotive industry of at least one significant thing: that the modern motorist demands sound advancement in motor mechanics, and when it is offered him, is quick to render honor where honor is due.

That, at any rate, is the interesting statement of Ben Grossman, sales manager of Jameson Motors Limited, Studebaker dealer here, in discussing Studebaker's vastly improved sales position since free wheeling made its bow in the new series. President and Commander Eight last July.

"Before Studebaker took the initiative and brought the industry to its feet with its new engineering development, manufacturers had been content to limits improvement and advancement to comparatively minor features of refinement or change in surface construction," Mr. Grossman said. "Not since the introduction of four-wheel brakes was there any significant move towards improvement in the fundamental factors of motoring."

"Free wheeling, however, tapped an entirely new treasure house of motoring pleasure, driving ease and comfort, and in addition provided a new measure of safety and operating economy. Mr. and Mrs. Individual Motorist came, saw, experienced and were conquered. "Instantly favorable public reaction registered itself in sales. Within thirty days of the appearance of the new free wheeling car, Studebaker sales jumped ahead of competition."

How to Play "Kbo"

Would you like to play "Kbo"? Perhaps you have never heard of the game, but it is popular among natives of western Africa. The natives use a board containing twelve holes, but if you want to play, you may do so without a board.

Find a plot of ground where it is right to dig all holes. Make a hole only two or three inches deep, and arrange them in two rows of six holes in each row. Scatter forty pebbles, and place four pebbles in each hole. One player starts the game—we shall call him "Player A." He picks up one pebble from one of the holes in his row of six holes. He may take them from any hole he chooses. In the hole at the right he places one of the pebbles, and one in each of the next three holes farther to the right. When he has dropped four pebbles in four holes, the result is that seven holes contain four pebbles apiece, four holes contain five pebbles apiece, and one hole is empty.

Player B now has his turn and picks up all the pebbles in a hole on his side of the "board," and drops them one by one in holes to the right of the one from which he has taken them.

This is done, time and again, by the two players. The idea is to have the last pebble of those dropped fall in a hole, on the other player's side, which has only one or two pebbles in it. This gives the player the right to pick up all the pebbles in that hole and put them aside to be counted in his favor. The game is kept up until one player has no pebbles on his side. His opponent picks up the remaining pebbles, and counts them as scores, adding all other pebbles he took from the "board." Whichever player has more pebbles, wins the contest. This is a game of skill, and is as much fun as a game of chance.

INTERNATIONAL TO COMPOSE BACKBONE OF CANADIAN PARTY

like a forward, can beat man after man and then finish up with a perfect pass, sometimes "be" through a "little" goal; perhaps he will be tempted to do so on tour. Even so, all crowds will revel in the play of this quiet, unassuming man from Sunderland Town. Oliver of Fulham, the other half back in the party, was also honored by the selectors this season and played for The Rest in the international trial match. He is regarded as an international of the future. He is a product of amateur football in London, where the unpaid game is exceptionally strong. The game is kept up until one player has no pebbles on his side. His opponent picks up the remaining pebbles, and counts them as scores, adding all other pebbles he took from the "board." Whichever player has more pebbles, wins the contest. This is a game of skill, and is as much fun as a game of chance.

THE FORWARDS Now we come to the forwards: Eden of Sunderland (outside right) is a good sample of the modern wing man. Nowadays, outside forwards must be nippy and should be able to cut in towards goal as distinct from running to the corner flag before crossing the ball. Eden was born at Stockton, does this well. Standing five feet seven and weighing 143 lbs. he is a parcel of pluck and a very enterprising player. He is a versatile and very accomplished forward who has been capped by England. He was first an outside forward, but can now play in any position in the line, as when Sunderland struck a lead patch about a year ago he took up the inside right position and made a great success of it. He is a lively little player whose exhibitions Canada will thoroughly enjoy.

Weddell, of Portsmouth, (centre forward) was born at Sunderland. He made his name with the Hampshire club, and will be a live leader of the English attack. Canada will find him a bold, fast, and a very enterprising player. He has a way of boring through the defence, and standing five feet nine and weighing 175 pounds, he is a very powerful player. He played in Portsmouth's Cup final two years ago.

Jack Smith, of Portsmouth, is the most finished player on the team. His attack is a masterpiece. Weddell's success this season is due to the openings made for him by Smith at inside right.

Rine, of Leicester, has already represented his country with distinction, and is a very popular figure on the field, not only at Leicester, but on the whole of the English football.

ATTRACTIVE PLAYER Barry, of Leicester City, (outside left) is, in his day, one of the most attractive players in English football. Lithe and fast, he is an elusive wing man, who can pass, shoot, and play accurate and attractive in bounding off his approach play. Barry, at his best, is a delightful player.

In Houghton, of Exeter City, is an inside left who has come right to the front this season. You will remember that little Exeter City (a Third Division club) reached the final of the FA Cup competition, after knocking out Derby County and Leeds United. Then they were beaten by Sunderland. Houghton has been one of the mainstays in this surprising team's triumph. It is freely stated that Tottenham Hotspur have been prepared to pay a big fee for his transfer. Certainly Exeter City would not part with him for less than £5,000. Although he is only a youngster, he was born in Liverpool. What were the two Liverpool clubs to let this young star slip away, though?

Cookson, (centre forward of West Bromwich Albion, completes the team. Here is a most interesting player. Cookson is a brother of the Bradford and former Manchester City full back. He himself was a full back with the Manchester City club, who allowed him to leave along to Chesterfield. In Third Division games emergencies often arise. A full back, for instance, may have to turn out at centre forward. This happened to Cookson. At once he made a name. He took to the new position like a duck to water, and whereas he had been only a moderate back, he became the talk of the country, so that in 1928-9 by scoring forty-four goals in thirty-eight games in the Northern Section of the Third Division, he broke the existing record. Others, of course, have now gone higher.

It will seem, therefore, that Canada is to entertain a highly accomplished set of players containing some famous stars.

Brentwood

Three excellent hoop games are scheduled for Saturday evening at the West Road Hall when the Hunters, Hanbury's and Standard Steam Laundry quintettes will stack up against the local fives. As these games will be the final fixtures for this season's basketball at the West Road Hall, it is expected a large crowd will be on hand to wind up the season in the proper style. Stewart's orchestra will supply the music for the dance to follow the games. The probable line-ups will be:

West Road Girls—Mary Peden, Bona MacMurchie, Alice Lalonde, Beattie MacMurchie, Pat Hall, I. Alexander and Marie Mathews.
West Road Intermediates—S. Bickford, A. Bickford, W. Staggitt, Charlie Staggitt, P. Lannon.
West Road Seniors—G. Lannon, M. Lannon, Clarence Staggitt, Claude Staggitt, L. Butler, N. Andrew. MacMurchie, Johnson, Fraser, Menzies, Olsson.

Collins commanded the draft which went to Valcartier in 1914, later to become part of the famous 7th Battalion. He later commanded that battalion, and eventually the 11th Brigade.

Lieut.-Col. Ryan was an original officer of the 121st Battalion (Western Irish), and later commanded the 102nd Battalion in France. He undertook the reorganization of the Irish Fusiliers as a militia unit following the war.

REQUESTS FOR PENSIONS ARE NUMEROUS

Ottawa, April 23.—A total of 14,406 applications for revision of pensions have been received by the chief pensions advocate from the board of pension commissioners. From other sources the chief pensions advocate has received 1,629 applications. This information was given in the Commons yesterday by Hon. Murray MacLaren, Minister of Pensions and National Health, in answer to questions by A. Speakman, U.F.A., Red Deer.

Of the total number received the chief pensions advocate has passed on to the pensions tribunal 3,518 applications. He has passed on 260 to the pensions appeal court. There remain 12,537 applications in the hands of the chief pensions advocate still under consideration.

In answer to a series of questions asked by Hon. Ian MacKenzie, Liberal, Vancouver Centre, Dr. MacLaren said a total of 1,492 applications had been heard by the pensions tribunals up to March 31 last. Approximately 408 applicants had been granted entitlement on all conditions asked for.

The appeal court had heard 241 appeals. Of such appeals, the appeal court had reversed decision in seventy-nine cases where the previous decisions were favorable to the applicants and in thirteen instances where previous decisions were against the applicants.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Ten constables, the second class of the present year, will graduate from Douglas House, the provincial police school, at the end of this month. Commissioner J. H. McMullen announced. Another class of ten will then commence training.

The Sanich Council is expected to strike the tax rate this evening after finally passing the high school by-law authorizing a bond issue of $93,000. It is expected by Reeve Crouch that the council will be able to hold the tax levy at last year's rate of twenty-eight mills.

TRUE PATRIOT REPAYS DEBT TO OWN LAND

Not Flag-waving But Work to Better Country Real Patriotism, Says Dean Quanton

Englishman of Fine Mystic Idealism Rotary Club Told at St. George Luncheon

Not by waving flags or singing the national anthem, but in trying to repay his mother country for the benefits it had bestowed upon him did a man show true patriotism, stated Dean C. Quanton, in giving some reminiscences of England at the special St. George's Day luncheon of the Rotary Club at the Empress Hotel to-day.

"A galaxy of memorable events have gathered around this day. Yesterday was commemorated the battle of Tyne. Last night was the anniversary of the Zeebrugge attack. To-day is celebrated the birthday of Shakespeare and St. George, the patron saint of England. And Saturday will be Anzac Day, the dead said."

Today, therefore, not only a great day for England, but also for Canada and the British Empire, he said. England, the predominant partner in the British Empire, was the predominant partner to-day, with the St. George's cross, the basic figure in the Union Jack, flying from the flagpoles of many great English buildings.

With the attitude of a man looking on his country with an air of benevolent criticism, he saw both the land's defects and its virtues.

NARROW CONCEPTION

It is possible to be both a good Englishman and a good Britisher, a good imperialist, a good humanitarian and a good internationalist, he said, in criticizing a narrow conception of nationalism.

He criticized the attitude of some intensely patriotic Englishmen who stood in defence of their country, whether the policy was right or wrong. It was not illogical to be proud of one's country for the things which it could give to the world and which could not be obtained from any other country, the dean declared.

"True patriotism, in my opinion, is based on a sense of what I owe to my country, said the dean. England gave me. England has given me a good life. England taught me to play games. It was England that gave me my church and it was England that gave me the beginnings of my education and opened up to me the study of literature. Patriotism, to me, implies an effort on the part of a man to repay to his country some of the benefits he has received from it."

By means of helping to make Canada a better place, in his own way, he felt that he was being patriotic. Flag waving, and vociferous singing of the national anthem were of no value, the speaker said.

He found some fault with the attitude of the English in following the provincial flag, but there was no bush in good times and bad in adversity. He felt that England had accepted St. George as its patron saint because it found that character, who was generally considered an ordinary individual, imbued with the hidden ideal of England, as typifying the ideal of the Englishman.

The average United States citizen might have considered the Englishman a regular John Bull, but there was a hidden idealistic side to him, the dean added.

HELD IN BREAST

The mystic element in the Englishman was not shouted to the world, but was held tenaciously in the breasts of the men of that country.

Englishmen, great and small, like St. George, sprang from plain men. England's industrial and trade leadership might fade, but people would always turn to her for culture and spiritual wealth as they turned to Rome and Greece, he said.

MAYOR WALKER IS CENSURED

But New York City National Republican Club Expunges Some References in Report

New York, April 23.—The National Republican Club has expunged references to the private life of Mayor James J. Walker from a report of a committee of the club.

Action was taken after vigorous debate on a report which had been drafted by the club's City Affairs Committee. The deleted passage read:

"The Mayor Governor Roosevelt, junketed to racetracks, set up all night at wild parties, entertained Hollywood and ignored the city's problems. Every man, of course, has a right to live his private life as he sees fit, so far as consistent with his obligations to others, and we have no concern with Mayor Walker's private escapades, except in so far as they interfere with his public duties. The Mayor of New York has no right to allow the vagaries of his private life to interfere with reasonable attention to the responsibilities of his great office."

APPROVES CENSORIOUS REPORT

Other than references to private life, the club approved the report censuring the mayor.

The City Affairs Committee, a group which has no connection with the committee of the Republican Club, had called for the expurgation of New York State to act in the case of the Mayor. It suggested an open trial to be presided over by the Governor or a commissioner to review the report findings.

SOVIETS START DRIVE AGAINST LOWLY KULAKS

Moscow, April 23.—The lowly and much despised kulak, who is neither fish, flesh nor fowl in the Soviet Republic, apparently is due for new troubles. A new campaign against all kulaks, or small land-owners, is being planned.

According to correspondence published in the newspaper Izvestia, it is proposed every kulak in the Soviet Union, in the future be registered with the police so he will not be able to get a job in government departments and must resort to manual labor or cease to exist.

It is estimated there are some 3,000,000 kulaks in Russia at present.

TO PUT TROUT EGGS IN LAKES

Courtesy, April 23.—The Dominion Government has decided to stock eight additional lakes on the Forbidden Plateau with 800,000 Kamloops trout eggs. The Board of Trade was yesterday notified that the work had been authorized.

The lakes are entirely barren of fish at present, but have been favorably reported upon by fisheries officials.

BICYCLIST SUES MOTORIST FOR $1,000 DAMAGES

George Sever, 1504 Topas Avenue, through his counsel, C. E. "Buck" Smith, has brought action before Judge Langman against Nell Little, 282 Saanich Road, for $1,000 damages for personal and other injuries suffered when he was run down on Quadra Street on Sunday.

Mr. Sever claims he was riding a bicycle, southbound, when he was struck by a motor car, driven by Nell Little, who was driving northbound. The car was travelling at a high speed and struck him violently to the highway.

Damage due to permanent disfigurement is placed by Mr. Sever at $1,000, and the other damages amounting to $100, have been "tumped down" to the whole, being the sum of $1,100.

Sooke Family Leaves Home In Night; Fire

Fire early yesterday morning destroyed the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham, Otter Point Road. Mr. Cunningham was awakened by smoke and found the roof well on fire. He aroused Mrs. Cunningham, his children, and Miss Kathleen Thompson, the teacher at the Otter Point School, who resided with the family. The progress of the fire was so rapid that the saving of clothing and all escaped in their night attire, and were given shelter by Mrs. Blakeney, a neighbor.

Charles McKenzie, who was arrested first on a charge of vagrancy, this morning in City Police Court, was charged with the fire, and remanded to Tuesday on $500 bail.

STRAW HATS Going Out Of Fashion?

Elderly Gentleman Seen Wearing One Yesterday, But Local Dealers Do Not Think He Will Have A Big Following.

Though an elderly gentleman was seen yesterday wearing a straw hat, his example probably will not be copied by a great number of Victorians, according to local hat dealers. It is not that the wearing is forbidden, but because fickle fashion has taken a momentary dislike to the once popular summer headgear.

"People are not buying straws as they used to do," one hat expert said this morning. Each year for the last ten years sales on them have been increasing, and this year our store is withstanding the first serious order for a few more weeks. Last year at this time it already had gone on its shelves.

COPYING PRINCE OF WALES

Though fashion plays a part in the wearing of straw hats, the young men especially are discarding hats in the summer time. "When they do buy straws they prefer the high-crowned, flop brim variety," the dealer said. This occurs in spite of the fact that the Prince of Wales wore one of the old-type, stiff-brimmed hats in South America. Incidentally, the dealer has already had inquiries about the purchase of a straw hat "just like the one the Prince of Wales is wearing."

INITIALS ON HATS

Married men can not discard hats as the younger men, and so they are not so likely to purchase a good many of the old-fashioned "mule feeds." In any case, the producers can usually bring rebellious people back to hat wearing. About two years ago, according to the dealer, men in New York and other centres left off wearing hats. The retailers got a novel idea. They cut the initials of the purchaser on the rim of the crown, put a bargain price on the hat and exploited the college field of the collegians like the daring novelty and soon respectable society followed. The device proved a fine ventilation system. The craze inevitably died out, but men still wore hats.

Perhaps some brilliant idea will again bring "straws" back to the sun and wind atop the heads of the people of Victoria.

ALEX. ENGLIS DIED TO-DAY

With a suddenness which shocked his many friends, the city Alex. Inglis, former chief accountant of the B.C. Electric Railway Company, passed away at an early hour this morning at his home, 114 Wildwood Avenue.

Mr. Inglis had been ailing for some time, but had been about as usual until a few days ago, when he developed what was thought to be a slight indisposition. It, however, proved to be more serious than at first thought and an operation was performed from which he failed to rally.

For over twenty years Mr. Inglis was in the employ of the British Columbia Electric Company in the capacity of bookkeeper and accountant in Vancouver and Victoria. He came to Victoria about fifteen years ago from the mainland city and was chief accountant here for ten years, until he was discharged in 1915. He was married in September last.

He is survived by his widow, two sons, one of whom, Billy, is well-known as a singer, and a daughter, residing at the family residence, 114 Wildwood Avenue.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Luxton Conservatives Get Chain Club Charter to Save Party

The movement to force a clean-up of the provincial Conservative party got under way officially in the suburban part of Vancouver Island yesterday evening with the inauguration of a Chain Constitutional Club at Luxton Hall, with ceremonies conducted personally by five officers of the Chain Constitutional Club of Vancouver.

Before 160 Conservatives from the rural districts of the Island, Councillor Rylett of Burnaby, who is vice-president of the parent Vancouver organization, presented the charter to President Blake of the new Island organization.

Councillor Rylett, J. E. Clancy of Vancouver, W. McD. Holland, secretary of the Vancouver Constitutional Club, and W. C. Wallace of Vancouver, were among the speakers.

Mr. Rylett said they were not out to break up the Conservative party, but desired to save it by bringing about a clean-up of the state it has got into under the present control of the Talmie Government.

Mr. McDicken was named secretary of the new organization.

Besides the Vancouver and Island representatives, the function was attended by Victoria Constitutional Club representatives.

No Danger From Fire at Luxton

No danger was expected from the bush fire burning near Luxton to-day. It was said to be burning in a waste area over a large tract of land, but was gradually being brought under control.

City firemen yesterday evening fought a bush blaze on the C.N.R. right-of-way north of the Gorge Road for three hours before bringing it under control. The retaining wall in the vicinity was damaged by the flames.

Under the direction of fire rangers, volunteer fighters quelled a fire which broke out at Millstream, near Langford, yesterday.

B.C. SUGAR BUYS ALBERTA PLANT FOR $2,000,000

1,000 TONS SUGAR BEETS A DAY

Lethbridge, Alta., April 23.—Though the price is not disclosed, purchase of the Raymond, Alta., sugar plant, is believed to represent about two million dollars, half of which is the value of the factory plant and the other half representing the value of the remainder of the 1931 sugar output still in store.

TO CONTINUE OPERATIONS

The Raymond factory was built in 1928, has a capacity of 1,000 tons of sugar beets, and has been in operation since 1929. It has a total of 127,000 tons of beets from 14,000 acres, making about thirty million pounds of sugar.

It is stated that the present operating officials will continue to operate the plant, and that the new company will not change the policy of the former owners, which was to export the best sugar industry in the world, the sections of southern Alberta as the conditions warrant.

N.Y. BANKS ARE OVERBURDENED WITH MONEY

France To-day Shipping $12-500,000 More Gold, Despite Wall St. Opposition

New York, April 23.—French bankers to-day arranged to send two more shipments of gold, totaling $12,500,000 to New York this week.

This swells to $18,000,000 to date the shipments of gold that have started from Paris to New York since the movement swung around from France to the United States this week for the first time in four years.

These shipments, together with others coming from South America, will boost further this country's record stock of monetary gold, now exceeding $4,700,000,000, and banking circles saw an effort to check what was regarded as a needless piling up of the metal here when the New York Federal Reserve Bank to-day out its buying rate for short term bankers' acceptances 1/4 of one per cent, making the rate for bills up to fifteen days only 1 1/2 per cent.

Since the effect of such a step is to cheapen credit, it was assumed in Wall Street the bank desired to make the New York market already overburdened with surplus money, less attractive to short-term lenders in Europe.

W. Kootenay Power Revenue Expands

Montreal, April 23.—The annual statement of West Kootenay Light and Power Company Limited, covering the year ended December 31, 1930, shows an expansion of gross revenue at $2,492,975 which compares with $2,300,650 in 1929.

Operating income was $1,807,977, against $1,686,650 in 1929. After reduction of bond interest, depreciation and so forth, there remained a net profit of $790,874, against $692,836 in 1929. Payment of preferred dividends at $35,000 left a balance of $755,874 which was short of common dividends by $160,927. Previous balance was reduced to $2,246,014.

N. Y. Market Analysis

New York, April 23.—Whitney of The Wall Street Financial Bureau says:

ADDITIONAL RAISING APPEARS

"The market finally gave way to the additional raising that was expected with the manoeuvre succeeding in bringing about enough decline to result in a new low point below December. I do not think the announcement of the government savings bank going under in New South Wales had any particular connection with the decline nor that there was any particular institutional or public liquidation to account for it, the whole performance simply being the result of a well-conceived manoeuvre by the bear forces which having already broken the 1931 low, fully realized the advantage from getting the market down to a point below what has stood thus far as the bottom of the bear market."

"Having broken this previous bottom by a full point, it is, of course, to be presumed that we can look for more weakness to-day, during which weakness it is perfectly possible that the expected 152 in the Dow Jones Industrial will be recorded. After this carryover of yesterday's momentum has exhausted itself, I believe, however, that a strong rally will set in before the close or, if not, early in the day to-morrow with this rally lasting several days. The thing to remember in regard to the new low for the bear market which we now have, is the precedent brought forward from the 1921 market which makes it perfectly possible that in the present situation we can see the market five points into new low territory and still not have to rush to the conclusion that a new phase of the bear market has been established. When a bear party is so firmly established in the middle as this one is, the performance of this kind can easily constitute an objective towards which they devote some terrific energy if for no other reason, than that public confidence becomes so undermined that covering operations are made considerably easier than if they were attempted here or four points above the old low. The effectiveness of these few points to them is well worth the effort and what we have seen does not appear to call for any more involved explanation than just this."

"While business is contradicting the market position to the extent that practically all of the recognized trade indicates stand at considerably better than the December low points, we are nevertheless, not completely out of the woods in what is the greatest local influence, poor first quarter earnings and dividend reductions. The Westinghouse report is only a few days off and will certainly make terrible reading but by the time we get the steel report out of the way, probably next Tuesday, I think we will have left this feature behind. I doubt if the market will wait for the last of them and feel that any further decline to-day will put us in a position for a rather sizable rally."

FILM GROUP IS FORMED HERE

New Organization Follows Address By Capt. Page Yesterday Evening

A semi-private meeting of the Film Group was held yesterday evening under the chairmanship of Miss Crease, when representatives of various organizations were addressed by Captain H. B. Page, who spoke at some length on the history and development of the film industry and on the present world conditions governing the exhibition of films.

Captain Page explained the objects of the film group, which has been in existence for some time. An effort is being made to raise the standard of motion pictures in Canada; to combat a foreign monopoly of Canadian screens; and to encourage the showing of films of the highest standards, especially of films made within the British Empire.

Captain Page said there were available for school exhibition many edu-

the department at Ottawa at a small expense, and to illustrate the possibilities of even the smallest camera, two films made from photographs thus produced were shown on the screen, one illustrating the life of a bee, the other a health film advocating and proving the use of milk for children.

After considerable discussion it was deemed advisable that the film group should form itself into an organization, to consist of members of other societies interested in the value and importance of the film as a medium of expression of ideas and truth, as well as in its power for pleasure and entertainment. Officers were tentatively elected and the thanks were expressed to Captain Page and Miss Crease.

BANKING SYSTEM OF CANADA PRAISED

Toronto, April 23.—Endorsement of the Canadian banking system was inferred in the address of H. T. Ferris, president of the Investment Bankers' Association of America, before a meeting of the Canadian branch here, when he reviewed the trials and problems that had beset the banking system of the United States during the past two years.

Mr. Ferris referred to a practice in that country which had allowed hundreds of small banks to tie up large amounts of customer deposits in varied forms of securities. He believed that they had been chiefly responsible for the very large bank failures in the United States during 1930.

To Relieve Catarrhal Deafness And Head Noises

If you have catarrhal deafness or head noises go to your druggist, and get one ounce of Farman (double strength), and add to it one-quarter pint of hot water, and a little ginger. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Grogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucous stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little, and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has catarrhal deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

Outrageous Laws Which Permit a Man of Seventy to Marry a Child of Thirteen—Straight Talk to Husbands Who Take Wives' Love for Granted

DEAR MISS DIX—One of my wife's relatives, a deaf mute, well over seventy years of age, has just married a school child thirteen years old. Due to the youth of the child her father was obliged to secure the marriage license. The child lived with her parents on a lonely creek in a remote and backward district. My wife and I met this family some months ago and were considering the matter of offering to rear her and provide some opportunity for her education and culture when this marriage occurred. The threescore-and-ten-and-more bridegroom raises a small garden, a few chickens and likewise does some net fishing. The child wife is ignorant of the seriousness of the step she has taken and romps at tag and other childish games with her sister.

I have stated the facts in this case without bias or prejudice, and I should like to know what you think of it.

RELATIVE.

ANSWER:

I think it is perfectly horrible and that it is almost unbelievable that such a thing is possible in a civilized country. A year or so ago we were all indignant over lurid stories about child marriages in India, yet in eleven of our own states girls of twelve are permitted to marry. That is a bitter shame upon us that makes our disgrace worse than India's, because girls there mature much earlier than they do with us and a girl of twelve in this country is no older in reality than a girl of eight would be in India.

It is hard to even imagine the callousness and the depths of ignorance in which any parents are steeped who would be willing to turn over their little girl child to any man, and especially to one who was deaf and dumb and hoary with age. The mind simply refuses to believe such an atrocity possible, but since it can take place and has taken place, the law should prevent the possibility of the repetition of such a crime. Let us trust that this poor little child shall not be sacrificed in vain and that the crime that has been committed against her ignorance, her youth and her helplessness will so arouse the public that laws will be passed protecting other girl children from those who would exploit them.

I do not believe that any law could be passed that would do more to promote human happiness than one which would raise the age limit at which girls and boys could marry to at least eighteen or nineteen for the girls and twenty or twenty-one for the boys and thus protect them from rushing into the ill-advised unions that, nine times out of ten, end either in divorce or dragging out a lifetime of sordid misery.

No sane person but who must realize that the adolescent girl and boy, feeling the first thrill of sex attraction, their heads filled with glamorous tales of romance, should be protected against their own ignorance and lack of knowledge and experience of life. They are in love with love and they imagine the nearest boy or girl to be the he or she of their dreams. They think a passing fancy is a deathless passion, but they are too young really to know what love is, too immature to know what they want in a mate. They are still growing boys and girls with tastes and desires that change from day to day, and when they rush into matrimony it is a tragedy.

For they are taking upon themselves burdens their young shoulders are too weak to bear. They are assuming responsibilities for which they are not ready. Their lives change and by the time they are men and women ready to marry they are disillusioned with the wives and husbands they have, out of love with them and bitterly regretful of the mistake they have made.

Look about you at the child wives. The girls not yet twenty tied down to boy husbands with whom they quarrel. Poor, overworked, dragged out, their youth and their beauty gone too soon, with fretful little children that they are too young to know how to take care of or manage hanging on to their skirts, while they look enviously on the girls of their own age who are enjoying the playtime of life that is their due. Girls who are gay and carefree and having pretty clothes and going to parties and having good times.

Look at the boy husbands. Sleep-deprived, care-burdened, anxious-eyed, sold by their own folly into slavery, no chance ever to get ahead in the world because every cent they make has to go to the support of their families, so discouraged they haven't even the courage to put up a fight. Hopelessly handicapped by a too-early marriage.

No letters that come to this department are sadder than those that begin: "I made the mistake of marrying too early. I thought I was in love, but I know now that I was such a child I didn't know what love was. But now I have found my real mate when it is too late." Or else these letters tell of a wife or a husband from whom a man or a woman is estranged by the inevitable process of growth. A foolish boy, who has developed into a fine intelligent man, but who finds himself tied down to a wife who at twenty-five is just as silly and ignorant as she was at fifteen or sixteen. Or a woman who has developed a brain and soul and is bored to death by the stupid boy she married because he had curly hair and was a peachy dancer.

So many of these early marriages doom so many men and women to drag them through life the festering corpse of a dead love to which they are chained.

Of course, now and then a boy-and-girl marriage turns out happily, but this does not happen once in a blue moon, and those who are predestined mates could well afford to wait a year or two to save the thousands of tragedies of too-early marriages.

DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am married to a young professional man, have two children, do all my housework, am a good cook and do everything I can to make my husband happy, but my problem is that I perish for the little attentions that are so priceless to a domestic woman. He takes everything for granted, never kisses me in the morning when departing for the office or upon his return in the evenings, never notices whether I am sad or glad, never says let's go to a movie or to church, never remembers birthdays or Christmas, never confides in me about his work. Why does a man expect so much of a wife and give so little? Is there anything I can do to change him?

M. E. B.

ANSWER: Not unless you can back him up against the wall and make him read this, and then he will doubtless say that I don't know what I am talking about.

But I do, and would like to take all of these stupid, blind, self-conceited husbands by the shoulders and shake a little sense into them and ask them what they think their wives married them for, and what they consider their wives are getting out of marriage, and how long they think their wives are going to stand being treated like vacuum cleaners, or some other useful and unconsidered piece of household machinery?

Their wives didn't marry them for money, or else they would have hunted up somebody who had more. They didn't marry them for a living, because any intelligent woman can make a living in an office or store easier than she can in a kitchen and nursery.

No. What a woman marries for is love. Companionship. Tenderness. Consideration. And when her husband doesn't give her these he is cheating her out of what she had a right to expect, and what he had led her to believe she would get.

For if he had been as cold and clammy and dumb and had shown as little interest in her before marriage as he does after marriage, she would never have said "yes" when he popped the question.

And I wonder if these self-complacent husbands, who don't feel that they have to pay a mere wife any attention, ever stop to think that women have to have love, and that if their husbands don't give it to them there is always some other man around, at least as long as they are young and good-looking, who is willing to supply it. And the husbands have no right to blame the wives. A starving person grabs at angel food.

Husbands might reflect on that phase of the situation for a little while and then they might remember that they can kill a wife's love by neglect so completely that after a little while she grows as indifferent to her husband as he is to her and she doesn't care whether he kisses her or not. And while a man may be so absorbed in his own affairs that he doesn't bother to show his wife any tenderness or affection, he doesn't want her to fall out of love with him.

Great Test For Churches in Asia

Toronto, April 22.—Christianity is undoubtedly facing greater forces in Asia—communism, atheism and nationalism—the United Church's board of foreign missions was told at a meeting here yesterday evening.

In Japan it is communism or Christ," said Principal C. J. L. Bates of Kobe.

"We in China have no sea to protect a poverty-stricken folk from Russian offers and yet our most insidious foe is the disregard of God that comes from some western teaching," said Rev. O. H. B. of Hong Kong, outlining the five-year movement of the Church of Christ in China.

The strongest of all woods is the African teak oak, which will stand a pressure up to 855 pounds.
